Market Review

April was broadly a positive month across asset markets. Economic data releases continued to point to a US recovery as the stimulus took effect, the economy continued to reopen, and vaccination rollout continued with President Biden surpassing his goal of 200m doses in the first 100 days of office. Notably, US Q1 GDP increased 6.4% on a quarterly annualised basis. Biden also proposed the USD2.25tn American Jobs Plan and USD1.8tn American Families Plan to be funded through tax rises, although the plans are likely to be modified in order to get approved.

USTs had already made a brutal adjustment in Q1 to reflect the improved economic outlook, and April was a better month: the yield on the UST 10-year tightened 11bps to 1.63% although the yield backed up into month end from a closing yield of 1.54%. The 5s30s spread tightened 3bps to 144bps at month end. Equity and commodity markets generally posted solid gains: The S&P 500 ended the month up 5.24%, Brent Crude gained 5.84% and copper gained 12.1%. Against this backdrop, IG and HY markets broadly gained while the USD dollar index (DXY) declined 2.09%. Eurozone Government Bonds came under some pressure as investors looked to an economic recovery as the vaccine rollout gained momentum.

Central Banks' policy response remained a focus. The Bank of Canada announced it would start to taper its weekly asset purchases as the outlook for the economy has improved but the Fed, BOJ and ECB continued with their supportive policy stance. While Jerome Powell acknowledged that the US economy had reached an 'inflection point' implying a period of faster growth and job creation, he also emphasised that the economy still needs to show substantial further progress towards the Fed's goals and that an uptick in inflation is expected to be largely transitory. He continued to dismiss 'taper talk' as premature. Similarly, Christine Lagarde said the ECB Governing Council "did not discuss any phasing out of PEPP because it is simply premature".

Portfolio Review

The Fund's QAUSD class gained 1.02% as IG credit markets performed better in April supported by the recovery in USTs. Having come under pressure in March, the Fund's holdings in Abu Dhabi were amongst the top contributors in April. Stronger oil/energy prices are credit positive for the Abu Dhabi sovereign along with quasi-sovereign positions such as Pemex and Gazprom which were also among the top performers. Split rated Pemex (rated Ba2/BBB/BB-) was also helped by continued gains in the high yield sector on the back of economic recovery prospects. Pemex 6.625% 2035 continues to look attractive trading on a yield of 6.99% and ~5.6 credit notches cheap. We continue to target higher quality credits, particularly quasi-sovereign and sovereign issuers, with a portfolio weighted average rating of A2.

Outlook

There is no doubt that the reopening of economies is leading to a strong rebound in economic growth and in turn reflected in strong readings for GDP growth and the labour market. These are backward looking indicators, however more timely indicators such as the monthly surveys of purchasing managers in the US are showing signs that the best may be behind us. To be clear, the data is still very strong, just not as strong one might expect.

The pace of expansion is important for sentiment regarding inflation. If inflation does not materialise when growth is strong, it is unlikely to materialise when growth is less strong. Inflation fears have been commonplace for almost half a century, but inflation has never materialised. So, a slowdown in growth will be watched carefully and, in our view, investors are likely to conclude that inflation is not going to be a problem this time either.

The reality, we believe, is that the underlying fundamentals are shifting in the direction of falling inflation. Working age populations are shrinking in much of the developed world with Japan, Germany, China, and the US all seeing a contraction in the 15–64-year-old age group. Beneath the surface is the 'Japanification' of the West, although what we are experiencing today is just the tip of the iceberg compared to what the future could have in store.

Although the Fund can only hold investment grade bonds (best rating basis), credit spreads are determined by relative pricing. With US BB High Yield trading around 3.4%, close to record lows, investment grade bonds, particularly the undervalued ones held within the portfolio, have plenty of scope to rally further. Investors still need income, increasingly so in a world of ageing populations, and that backdrop should be supportive for fixed income assets in general.

Fund Objectives

The Fund seeks to sustain higher income than typical investment grade indices, by targeting undervalued investments which amplify capital appreciation while reducing downside risk.

The Fund invests in investment grade bonds from those countries, and companies within those countries, which the manager considers have the greatest ability to pay their debts.

An investment in the Fund would not constitute a substantial part of a typical investor's investment portfolio and is not suitable for an investor who cannot sustain a loss on their investment. There is no guarantee of the Fund's future performance and past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. The value of your investment and the income derived from it can go down as well as up, and you may not get back the money you invested. The risks associated with making an investment in the Fund are described in the Prospectus but investors should note, in particular, the following: 1) the Fund may invest a part of its assets in debt securities issued by governments or companies. As a result, it is subject to the risk of the insolvency of the issuers of the debt in which they invest; 2) The Fund is subject to the risk of the insolvency of its counterparties; and 3) The Fund invests in one or more financial derivative instruments. While the use of derivatives can be beneficial, derivatives also involve risks different from, and in certain cases, greater than, the risks presented by more traditional investments. The use of derivatives to hedge against losses may also reduce the profit opportunities of the Fund.
